Radha's Letter

Dear Friends,

It does often slow down a bit in the summer months, but this July is proving to be an exception.

Two noteworthy global events this month - the Financing for Development Conference in Addis and the release of the final report on the Millennium Development Goals - helped the international community identify what is working in development and what we need to be doing better. As the world transitions to the Sustainable Development goals, leaders are looking at interventions that can support the achievement of these goals in a holistic manner. Clean cooking and our market based model were topics of discussion at several events in Addis, which is a clear sign of the success of our shared efforts as we approach the halfway mark of the Alliance’s mission.

In London last week, I joined the UK Department of International Development (DFID) for a discussion of an exciting new "Energy Africa" initiative. I met with DFID’s new Minister of State Grant Shapps to personally welcome him to the Alliance’s Leadership Council...

Partner Spotlight

Greenway Appliances

Greenway found success by focusing on developing a stove design that satisfied individual cooking requirements and was flexible enough to work for a variety of uses, including different geographies.
The Global Alliance for Clean Cookstoves is a United Nations Foundation-hosted public-private partnership to save lives, improve livelihoods, empower women, and protect the environment by creating a thriving global market for clean and efficient household cooking solutions. The Alliance’s goal calls for 100 million households to adopt clean and efficient stoves and fuels by 2020. The Alliance is working with over 1300 public, private, and non-profit partners to accelerate the production, deployment, and use of clean cookstoves and fuels in the developing world.
